

12 Los Angeles Food Trucks You Want To Be Tracking Down

ROSEMARY | NO COMMENTS | STREET FOOD, USA

We've had many delicious meals on the streets on our travels with authentic food quest. From bánh xèo and bun cha in Vietnam, mouthwatering meals on the streets of Bangkok, incredible noodle dishes like char koay teow in Penang, beef heart skewers in Peru, Balut (duck embryo) in the Philippines and much more.

On the streets, we have found honest and delicious food that is available to all. In the U.S., Los Angeles, California and the Kogi Truck have been called the birthplace of the modern food truck movement. In this mobile society with a rich immigrant taco truck culture, new wave chef and entrepreneurs have created some of the most delicious moveable feasts.

In collaboration with Los Angeles rental homes, we bring you the 12 hottest Los Angeles food trucks you want to be tracking down.

ABOUT US

Hi! Welcome to Authentic Food Quest. We are Claire and Rosemary. Our goal is to invite you to explore the local flavors on your travels. Follow our quest for authentic foods from around the world.

LEARN MORE ABOUT US

#4 Peaches' Truck

Peaches' Truck tops the list of Los Angeles food trucks and barbecue trucks. Run by the Peaches Smokehouse and Southern Kitchen, the food truck serves classic Southern dishes and slow-smoked BBQ that are made from fresh and local ingredients. They use humanely raised meat for their BBQ and burgers.

For a bite of Southern classic dishes without the wait, visit the recently opened Peaches' location in Hollywood at 6541 Hollywood Blvd, Suite #102.

Get updates on where to find the truck next: Peaches's Truck schedule

Mouthwatering sandwich (Photo Credit: Peaches Truck Instagram)